

For the third consecutive year, June 3rd 2009, we present the Globe Awards Winners!

The Sustainable City of the year, frontrunner within Sustainability Research, Master in Sustainability Reporting and the owner of the next breakthrough Sustainability Innovation will be recognized by H.R.H. Crown Princess of Sweden Victoria with the Globe Awards.

The Globe Award aims to foster sustainable development in society and would like to welcome cities, companies, and organisations to submit their sustainable contribution to society.

Please apply for the Globe Award through our website, www.globeaward.org, here you will find more information about the criteria that needs to be fulfilled in the 4 different categories:

- Sustainable City Award
- Sustainability Research Award
- Sustainability Reporting Award
- Sustainability Innovation Award

All applications need to be submitted by April 26 2009, subsequently the jury will assess all applications and choose the laureates that will be communicated extensively through all Globe Forum's channels.

"Sustainable development is challenging. It is not easy, it costs money and it takes time, but, it is absolutely critical to the future of our world. The Globe Award will help to raise the awareness of the importance of sustainable development and inspire others to take up the challenge. We support the Globe Forum's efforts to identify and recognize the world's leading sustainable innovations through the Globe Award and we strongly encourage innovators to apply."

- Gus Weber, Business Development and Community Relations Manager, New England Research and Development, Microsoft Corporation

For additional information contact the Globe Award Manager Martina Nee, martina.nee@globeaward.org

Thinking of you
 Electrolux

"When Electrolux was awarded the Globe Award it enhanced our possibility to continue arguing for the role energy-lean white goods have in tackling climate change.

Electrolux consumers today tell us they want climate smart household appliances.

The Globe award encourages us to continue developing sustainable refrigerators and washing machines."

- Hans Stråberg, Electrolux
Globe Award winner 2008